Commence to Expand Operations in India “Marketing and sale of products to begin in May”

Tinton Falls, NJ (April 18, 2007) Commence Corporation a leading provider of Customer Relationship Management software has announced that it will be expanding its operations in India. Commence India, located in Pune, has been primarily a development arm of Commence USA. It will now be expanded to include additional development, marketing and sale of the Commence products for the Indian market.

“CRM is becoming an important addition to growing businesses in India,” says Abhijit Joshi, director of operations for Commence India. “Businesses here are looking for a highly flexible affordable CRM solution that operates at the desktop. Commence offers a solution that addresses this requirement very well. The product provides a CRM Framework that consists of pre-built applications that are easily customizable. This will enable us to quickly and efficiently meet the unique requirements of companies in India.”

“We are delighted to expand the outreach of Commence CRM to India because we recognize the value and importance of this rapidly growing market,” explained Larry Caretsky, president of Commence Corporation. “The business opportunity in India is significant and we need to invest in the infrastructure and people who know how to sell and provide services to this growing community. In addition, the skills we need for product expansion are readily available in India and at attractive rates. The growth of our team in India is also an important step in continuing the expansion of our presence outside the United States,” says Caretsky. “We are currently selling and supporting customers in 22 countries around the world and hope to grow this substantially in the next few years. “
